Vet Tix Mission:
Vet Tix is dedicated to giving back to all branches of currently serving military, veterans, their families, and family of KIA. We provide tickets to sporting events, concerts, performing arts, and family activities aimed at improving their quality of life. Attending events with family and friends creates positive experiences, improves well-being, strengthens relationships, and encourages service members to stay engaged with American life and local communities.

2018 Survey:
Our 4th annual survey was conducted online August thru December 2018.

77 questions were asked regarding attendance impact, community engagement, well-being, social support, reintegration, and mental health. Over 52,000 VetTixers responded with an 86% completion rate.

The full 2018 survey is available at VetTix.org.

LIMITED EVENT ATTENDANCE
The average American attends 5.3 events per year, but 60% of our veterans report they attend two or fewer! Most are unable to afford attending events. Many veterans also tell us they feel uncomfortable in public, isolated from civilians, and have trouble readjusting to American and civilian life.

Veterans attend less than HALF the events as other Americans!

Social Support & Community Engagement
Reintegration literature recommends spending time with family, planning a date night, and finding a place in their community. Social support is essential for reintegration and well-being, but many struggle with this process and mental welfare. Service members and veterans need to engage in family activities and community events which support their reintegration processes and strengthen their social networks.

Vet Tix survey respondents reported struggling with reintegration, feeling separate from civilians, and are not involved in community groups. Combat veterans found reintegrating more difficult. Veterans who rated reintegration harder also rated their social networks significantly lower.

Over 90% of veterans who reported struggling with reintegration also reported experiencing depression, anxiety, or PTSD symptoms.

Recent research states that creating new, positive memories is essential for preventing depression and PTSD.

Vet Tix events provide a pathway to engage in social activities and American life. Quality time with family and friends strengthens relationships, improves state of mind, and creates new, joyful memories outside of the military.

IMPROVED MENTAL WELFARE AND HAPPINESS

Increased social activity from attending Vet Tix events improves well-being. VetTixers reported that attending events reduced loneliness, improved mood, and even relieved depression and PTSD symptoms. Those who attended events with both family and friends reported increased well-being impact and sense of belonging. The unique benefits of Vet Tix events: talking to other VetTixers, taking family and friends, attending new types of events, and being around other vets work synergistically to increase feelings of community support, improve well-being and alleviate depression and PTSD symptoms which helps troops and veterans reintegrate and lead happier lives.

VET TIX IMPACT STORIES

My husband was separated from the military due to his injuries, and he spent the next few years struggling to find a new path. Not being able to do a job you love and not being able to physically participate in any of your hobbies takes a toll on you and on those you love. Last year when we went to our first Coyotes’ game to celebrate my birthday on a very limited budget. It turned out to be so much more. While we were sitting in Gila River, something clicked into place for Jason. He needed an interest, a distraction, a hobby...badly. You guys gave him that. For the first time there’s common ground between a father who has been deployed, on weird military schedules or dealing with his disabilities, and two little boys who are, at 8 and 9, finally getting to get to know their dad. Four seats to a hockey game to many people would seem like a minor or trivial thing, but to my family it truly has been a blessing. – Michelle & Jason US Air Force veteran

Let me say “thank you” from the bottom of my heart... You are enriching the lives of all of us, military & veterans, by offering deeper connections with our parents, spouses, siblings, peers and potential friends. Your sponsorship meant a lot to me, because it tells me that you care about our quality of life and our well-being. – Ruel, US Navy Currently Serving

The thing I miss most about being active duty is camaraderie. Few times or activities can bring complete strangers to a mutual trust and understanding in the way the military can. Being at the Field Bowl I’m a section full of brothers and sisters brought back feelings of belonging I haven’t felt in years. Thank you! – Johnathan, US Coast Guard veteran

I know it may seem like it’s “just tickets” to a game or event, but for many of us it’s an achievement to just go to these games. It’s not something we would normally pay to do because it’s a traumatic experience to go. Vet Tix opportunities have done much more than just entertain us, it helps us heal and re-integrate into a society that can’t see our injuries. – James, US Marine Corps veteran
